1. Cleanliness is next to Godliness : Towards developing a sustainable, green and clean campus

2. Objectives:

- Promote a clean and hygienic campus environment.
- Encourage students and staff to actively participate in cleanliness drives.
- Ensure regular sanitation of classrooms, restrooms, and common areas.
- Implement waste segregation and recycling practices.
- Install sufficient dustbins and disposal units around the campus.
- Conduct awareness programs on the importance of cleanliness and hygiene.
- Maintain cleanliness in dining areas and ensure proper food waste disposal.
- Regularly monitor and evaluate the cleanliness standards of the campus.

3. The Context:

In the dynamic context of college life, the maxim "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" takes on multifaceted significance. Beyond the physical realm of tidy dorm rooms and well-kept common areas, it extends to the intellectual and interpersonal dimensions of student existence. Maintaining a clean and organized study space becomes a metaphor for disciplined academic pursuits, emphasizing the pursuit of knowledge as a sacred endeavor. In shared living environments, this principle fosters a sense of community, urging students to respect and contribute to the collective well-being. The concept resonates with the college ethos, linking cleanliness not just to a pristine environment but to a reverence for intellectual pursuits, ethical conduct, and harmonious social interactions. In this holistic interpretation, the adage becomes a guiding philosophy, encouraging students to embrace a balanced and respectful approach to their academic and communal journey.

4. The Practice:

In our college, the mantra "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" is more than a cliché; it's a lived practice embedded in our daily routines. Our academic spaces are not just neatly arranged, but they mirror a commitment to intellectual rigor and respect for learning. Students conscientiously maintain clean study areas, recognizing that an organized mind is fundamental to academic success. This ethos extends beyond the classroom; shared spaces, from the cafeteria to common areas, are treated with a sense of collective responsibility. This practice fosters a positive and cooperative atmosphere, reinforcing the belief that a clean and well-maintained environment is conducive to both personal and communal growth. It's a philosophy embraced not out of obligation but as an integral part of our college culture, instilling values of discipline, mutual respect, and a holistic approach to education. In embodying the principle of cleanliness, our college community upholds a standard of excellence that extends beyond academics into every facet of our collegiate experience.

5. Evidence of success:

In our college, the embodiment of "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" is evident through tangible successes and a thriving, positive atmosphere. Firstly, our academic spaces stand as reflections of this principle. Classrooms are organized and conducive to learning, fostering an environment where students can engage with their studies effectively. This commitment to cleanliness extends beyond academics; shared spaces are meticulously maintained, from well-kept libraries to pristine common areas.

This practice isn't just symbolic; it has yielded practical benefits. Academic achievements have seen a positive correlation with the emphasis on cleanliness. Students report higher levels of concentration and productivity in well-kept spaces. The disciplined approach to maintaining a clean and organized study environment contributes to academic success and underscores the connection between a clear, focused mind and scholastic accomplishments.

Moreover, the application of this principle in communal living spaces has resulted in a harmonious campus life. Students actively participate in cleanliness drives and initiatives, fostering a sense of responsibility and shared commitment to the well-being of the college community. The impact is not only visible in the physical cleanliness of spaces but in the respectful and cooperative interactions among students.

In essence, the success of the "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" philosophy in our college is evidenced by the thriving academic environment, collective responsibility for communal spaces, and the positive impact on student well-being and achievements. This practice has become ingrained in our college culture, contributing significantly to the overall success and positive ethos of our academic community.

Various initiatives towards clean and green campus are reflected through the following activities.

- i).Cleaning activities as a part of SWACHH GURUKUL programme conducted once in a month.Our college received First Prize (cash prize of Rs 20000) in a program under Swachh Gurukul Drive. Related documents enclosed
- ii).The lady cadets of NSS and NCC wings actively participates in cleanliness programmes

6. Problems encountered and Resources Required:

Implementing "Cleanliness is next to Godliness" in our college faces challenges like inconsistent awareness, varying student priorities, and logistical issues due to the campus's size. Adequate resources, both financial and educational, are required. Budgets need allocations for bins, cleaning supplies, and personnel. Sustainable solutions, like recycling programs, demand investment. Behavioral change campaigns and workshops are essential to promote understanding and participation. Overcoming these challenges necessitates a comprehensive approach, combining financial support, educational initiatives, and student engagement to embed the principle of cleanliness deeply within our college culture.
